

TRISHA FANNING

Ardor Environmental, LLC

Trisha Fanning is the President of Ardor Environmental LLC. Ms. Fanning has over twenty years regulatory compliance experience managing numerous projects throughout the United States. Trisha is responsible for oversight of company operations; management of project team members and provides technical regulatory expertise for water (CWA, NPDES, SPCC, SWPPP, BWQ), waste (RCRA, CERCLA, TSCA, SARA/TRI reporting), and air regulations (CAA MACT, NSPS, NESHAP standards) for oil and gas, ethanol, pharmaceutical, and chemical/petrochemical facilities.

Ms. Fanning has substantial Colorado Oil and Gas Conservation Commission (COGCC) compliance expertise. She has conducted several comprehensive compliance audits under the COGCC's new penalty framework and has worked to develop robust compliance programs for multiple operators to mitigate significant penalties.

Trisha also represents oil and gas clients in stakeholder meetings, commission hearings, enforcement and litigation proceedings. Trisha has established a stellar reputation with the COGCC technical staff as one of the few credible technical consultants that really knows the COGCC rules and regulations. Trisha uses this expertise, knowledge, and credibility with the COGCC and its staff to benefit her clients through an everchanging regulatory environment.

Additionally, she conducts transactional due diligence for acquisition and divestiture projects throughout the United States; along with expertise in supporting the development of regulatory applicability programs and compliance database systems.

Trisha provides mentorship and professional development to her staff to proactively manage client relationships; evaluate leads and potential projects that are best suited for company expertise and assist in proposal preparation, technical writing, and marketing, along with representing the company at technical conferences, networking events, and professional associations.

Ms. Fanning is co-founder of Small Operator Society which was created to represent privately owned oil and gas companies during the rulemakings associated to Colorado Senate Bill 19-181 passed in April 2019. Ms. Fanning currently is representing and handling the regulatory affairs for over 60 operators during the COGCC rulemakings and supporting the operators through rule implementation.

Additionally, Ms. Fanning is the past President of Rocky Mountain Association of Environmental Professionals (RMAEP) and has held a board position for over six years. Formerly on the board of advisors for Western Energy Alliance (WEA); an active member of Denver Petroleum Club (DPC), North Dakota Petroleum Council (NDPC), and Petroleum Association of Wyoming (PAW). Furthermore, Trisha has been an on-going volunteer for Junior Achievement (JA) supporting the Colorado for Responsible Energy Development (CRED) JA in a day education of 4th graders and the Youth Professionals Group. Trisha also can be heard on the Crude Audacity podcast Grace, grits and oil.
